

---

ACTIVITY 4:

1. Freedom demands responsibility.

Freedom and responsibility are one, because for you to be free you should be responsible enough with your actions. As human who has the ability to make our own decisions and choices, we must be ready to take all the consequences of our deeds. Essentially, this means acknowledging the role you play in your own life – the good bits and the bad bits. So, rather than looking around for someone or something else to blame, you must accept that you are in charge of what is going on in your life and accept that your own actions was what led you to that situation, that's being freed and being responsible at the same time.

2. Why only human beings can be Moral?

Only human can be moral because only human has the ability to think what is right and what is wrong. We human has the ability to sacrifice our own good for the sake of others which animals cannot do. Animals cannot act morally, they will not sacrifice their own good for the sake of others, but will rather pursue their good even at the expense of others. We human has the means of making choices in which we can divide and act on according to our morals.

3. Give the distinction between human acts and acts of man.

Human acts are the actions that is done voluntarily and with great knowledge of what to and how to do it. This an act where we express our thoughts and desires as a person, revealing our moral character. While Acts of man can also be considered as involuntary actions for these are actions done under the circumstances of ignorance, passion, fear, violence, and habits. In short Human acts are action that we do using our intellectual capability such as giving a piece of advice while on the other hand Acts of man are action that is done by us naturally such as digesting food and blinking our eyes.

4. “Man as a Moral Person”.

Man as moral person is what make human being unique from other animals. Our capability to distinguish right from wrong is according to our intellect as part of morality. Being able to do things that the society approve and follow political norms is part of our morals. Who we are is according to what moral we have.