1. What is Rizal's main message in this letter? (10 points)
    - Rizal assured that someday He will take vengeance against Spaniards, who took advantage of the Filipino who were victims of abuses and cruelties. Ever since he was a child, Rizal had been a devoted son of the Philippines. In time, as he grew old enough to understand not only the beauty of the nation, but also the tragedy of its political oppression, he expressed with increasing force and clarity his aspirations for a Filipino homeland that would be truly free from those iniquity and cruelties of the Spaniards. Rizal's writings, especially his two novels, present a panoply of the abuses committed by some Spaniards against the Filipino folks and he promised that for those who commit mistakes must pay for it by punishment, imprisonments and executions that they deserved.
