

Is the teaching of Rizal course realistic given the dangers and sensitivity of literature as means of communication in learning nationalism, patriotism, and volunteerism? Do we really learn nationalism and patriotism with the present pedagogy of Rizal course?

yes, there is a lot of literature about nationalism, patriotism and volunteerism of the Filipinos that was written by various author that have different lineage. So we can't assure if those literatures were authentic, reliable, and relevant when it comes to the information.

The teaching of Jose Rizal's life, works, and writings is mandated by Republic Act 1425, otherwise known as the Rizal Law. Rizal law, enacted in 1956 and has following goals. Since Rizal was the founder of the Philippine nationalism and has great impact to the current standing of our country it is only right to study the life and work of Rizal. The life and works of Rizal will help us see, know, and understand the great ideas of Jose Rizal about nationalism, patriotism and volunteerism. By implementing Rizal Law, we the youth will learn many lessons and inspirations with his works. His principles and love for the country, his inputs towards the independence of the Philippines and how he made many sacrifices and fought for our freedom by writing his famous poems and novels. Revealing the truth about the abuses and the wrong doings of the Spanish priest although it has been sensitive issues about the church and the priest, Rizal open the eyes of every Filipino on what's happening in our country and I think we are old enough to know the truth and believe our own opinion.

Rizal course is as helpful as any other course that teaches value that we may carry for the rest of our lives. Through Rizal's life and works we can learn how to face various challenges in life, displaying that you can show your love to your country without using violence. If all of the youth will inherit this kind of concern and patriotism for the country, for sure we will have a nonstop cycle of dignified youth that soon will be leaders of this country.
