Title of the Film: Pitaka by Chris Cahilig

Short Narrative of the Film: An inspiring film that highlights cherished Filipino values, particularly the longstanding tradition of having elder siblings take over the role of parents in their absence, Pitaka easily tugged at the heartstrings of many Filipinos.

| Filipino Value/s in the Film | Personal Experiences about the value/s | Strengths or weaknesses of the Filipino Characters | Retain or Change the said Filipino Value (briefly discuss) |

| 1. The story tells us of a hardworking young man who set aside his own dreams to provide for his younger brother's needs | I always setting aside my wants when it comes to my family. Like when I am working I always buy a grocery instead of buying my wants. | This character is the strength of the Filipino because we are selfless when it comes to our family. We are not greedy for money. We are always sharing the blessings. Maybe sometimes it also becomes a weakness because you seem to have nothing left of yourself because they are the ones you always put first. | It still retain in the Filipino Values. We do not lose the generosity of family members. We are always putting our family first before others. |

| 2. Showing gratitude to his older brother in the end of the story. | Don't forget to show some gratitude to your parents who are always sacrificing and always giving an efforts every single day for the sake of our safety. | The strength of this Filipino character is the gratitude of the one who gave us help when we were nothing. In this habit there is nothing wrong with returning what they have given for us. | it remains for our Filipinos to pay back all their hardships to us so that we can make up for what they have done for us. |

Title of the Film: Open Door by Paul Soriano

Short Narrative of the Film: It pays tribute to the true story of how President Manuel L. Quezon saved over 1300 Jews from the Holocaust by bringing them to the Philippines and giving them a home. It is my dream one day to turn this story into a full length feature film so that everyone will know that during the time of need, the Philippines was there to help.

| 3. Hospitable | In our house everyone is welcome. There are some strangers coming in our house but we always offer some food for them. | This character is the strength of the Filipino's because we are known in the whole world the most Hospitable persons. This is also our tradition to welcome all the visitors even though they are strangers to us. | It still remain because we Filipino's are known as a hospitable persons. Even though they are strangers to us we still entertain them. |

| 4. Showing politeness to everyone. | My mother taught me how to be polite to everyone especially to the elders. I always doing “mano po”. | This kind of Filipino character is also one of the strength of Filipino’s because we are polite to the elderly. We are taking care of them always. They are first in the line and always special they have discounts and etc. | It will no longer lose our Filipino habit for being polite because it is already in each other's blood and it is also our culture to be polite especially to the elderly. |

| 5. Filipino Values is they speak in pure Filipino | I always using Filipino Language but not that always because most of the time I speak in my Mother Tongue which is Pangasinan . | The characters strength is that you will practice our national Language and you will build up your skills in speaking in Filipino. The weakness of this that you will not be fluently speak in other laguages when you are always speaking in Filipino. | I think it change a lot beacause so many Filipino is using other languages like Korean and English. |

|---|---|---|---|
| 6. Sharing the knowledge to one another. | We, my friends always sharing ideas and experiences because we can learn for each others experiences and stories. We can also help each other from that situation by giving some advice. | This kind of Filipino character is that strength for me because it is a good trait of a person. Sharing is caring. | It still remain in the Filipino Values because everyone is sharing their knowledge through Facebook, Instagram, Twitter and other social media. It is easily for now to share your thoughts and experiences. |
